ABSTRACT

A recombinant vaccine is described which is composed of one recombinant protein comprising F1 and V antigen of Yersinia pestis. This vaccine protects experimental mice against pneumonic as well as bubonic plague produced by either F1⁺ or F1⁻ strains of Y. pestis and may provide the basis for an improved human plague vaccine.